By Frank A. Stromsten. This paper is submitted as a preliminary report of the results obtained by the writer in the study of the lymphatic system of the turtles. While the anatomy of the lymph hearts has been so carefully and accurately described in the sea turtle by Mullej (1839) and in the large land turtles by Fritsch (1874), their development, as far as is known to the writer, has never been studied. Recently, the most general interest has been attached to the development of the lymphatics in general. But the results obtained have been by no means in accord. On the contrary, the most divergent conceptions have arisen through the study of the mammalian type alone....
